Hospital Attendants Hold
Little Chance For Man's Recovery

LITTLE ROCK, (AP)—W. U. McCabe, 50, Baxter county representative in the present legislature, was shot and seriously wounded by a bullet which passed through the door of his hotel room early Thursday morning.

H. G. Lansdale, an Atlanta traveling salesman, was held for questioning when a small caliber pistol was found in his room and he was reported to have told a hotel clerk before the shooting that if the clerk didn't stop McCabe from making noise that he would.

Officers said they learned that McCabe was intoxicated and creating a disturbance at the time of the shooting.

Hospital attaches said McCabe's recovery was doubtful.

Though previously McCabe served two terms in the Senate this is his first term in the house.

He is author of a resolution calling for a constitutional convention in November.

His home is at Mountain Home, where he is an attorney.

Lansdale denied shooting McCabe.

Highland Peach Crop Is Not Hurt

Orchardists Optimistic and Work of Spraying
Is Underway

NASHVILLE, Ark.—The peaches in this district were not damaged by the frost and cold days of the past week. The orchardists are very optimistic over the outlook. None of the orchardists reported a loss of any kind.

The orchards over the districts are practically all in full bloom. Work is going on in most of the orchards of the district, and it is anticipated that this year's crop will be of as high quality as any ever produced in the district, as well as one of the largest crops.

The greatest piece of work being done in the district now is the plumbing of the 400-acre orchard of the American Fruit Growers of Highland for spraying. Large pipes are being run through the orchard at regular intervals and the spray machine will be forced through those pipes to supply nozzles for spraying, doing away with the necessity of hauling the material on trucks and using individual power units for each spraying crew.

A large lake is being formed in the orchard to supply the water for the operations and a fine mixing station is being prepared for the plant.

Justice Holmes, 90, Walks to Work

Not only the oldest member of the United States Supreme Court, but one of the most alert and active, Associate Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes here is shown walking briskly in Washington on the eve of his ninetieth birthday. He was congratulated on the anniversary by President Hoover, and consented to make his first radio address in response to other tributes tendered him.

Egg Prices Permit Heavy Consuming

Hen Is One Thing Not Affected By Drouth
and Depression

The old hen blinking on her nest out in the chicken house doesn't know a thing about market prices, supply and demand, the depression, or farm relief. But day after day, week after week she just keeps putting the same vitamins . . . the same . . . proteins . . . the same healthful food value which nature ordained in these eggs . . . whether they sell for 12 cents or sixty cents a dozen. And if the world turned upside down tomorrow she'd probably find the hen sitting placidly underneath the mess turning out her daily globet of health wrapped in the world's most sanitary package.

So if the same full ration . . . the same bundle of carbohydrates, minerals, fats, and vitamins is appearing day after day from mother hen we're certainly getting a bargain when we get our product in the market at the lowest price in many years. Let's crack a few extra eggs into the frying pan for breakfast. We'll all be better for it.

French Will Print Anne Lindbergh's Poems

PARIS.—(U.P.)—The aviation society, Les Ailes Brisées (The Broken Wings), has translated one of Mrs. Anne Morrow "Remembrance," and is soon issuing it in Paris.

The American composer, Maury Madison, recently set the poem to music from a French translation of Rene Nazzelles. The poem-song has been offered to the Ailes Brisées in French the poem is known as "Solvance."

The poem which starts with the lines: "Your hands have curved about this bowl; Your lips have felt a kiss upon the teacup's rim," was written by Mrs. Lindbergh before she married the trans-Atlantic flier.

$75,653 In Federal Loans Approved In Hempstead County

Four Hundred and Twenty-Seven Farmers Have Received Money

FOOD IS AVAILABLE

Loans For Food Being Made With Regular Applications Now

According to H. M. Stephens, chairman of the Hempstead county Federal Loan Board, applications for loans by 427 Hempstead county farmers have been approved. Checks have already been received for 40 per cent of the $75,653 represented by the above number of applications.

Almost every mail brings several checks from the Memphis office to be distributed here. During the past two weeks more money has been received by the local board than at any other time.

Food Loans
On all applications being made at the present and in the future an additional sum may be obtained for food. This food loan is being made on the same blanks with the feed, seed and fertilizer application.

Those 427 farmers, whose loans have already been approved may receive this additional food loan also, but according to Mr. Stephens the supply of blanks for this loan is not available at the present. It is expected that it will be a week or more before the local board will be supplied with this form.

As soon as the board receives these blanks a notice will be published in the newspapers so that those who contemplate making a food loan may do so.

Wets Should Get Comfort By Report

Prohibition Chairman,
Wickersham Speaks To Boston Gathering

BOSTON.—(AP)—Chairman Wickersham, of the law enforcement commission, Thursday interpreted the commission's prohibition report as holding more comfort for the wets than for the dries.

He expressed surprise that the most vehement criticism had come from anti-prohibition sources, adding, he thought the wets would have derived more encouragement from the report and separate statements of the commissioners than the dries.

The chairman included this statement in a luncheon address before the Boston Chamber of Commerce.

Daylight Mining Is Finding Favor

To Mine Coal in Open
Air Instead of Sinking
Shafts

POTTSVILLE, Pa.—"Daylight mining" is gaining wider favor in the low- or anthracite fields.

Under this method, steam or electric shovels are used to strip the earth from seams of coal lying close to the surface. The workers then mine the coal in the open air instead of sinking shafts and spreading networks of tunnels and gangways underground.

The method was one of two adjuncts to increased anthracite production during the "boom" years preceding and during the World War. The other was the washery system, through which coal previously discarded on banks or accumulated in water courses was run through washery plants and sieved to provide small grades of anthracite.

Operators blamed the washeries for much of the disfavor anthracite met on the market because of the inferior quality. Most of the larger companies are suspending washery operations at their mines.

Prince's Pups Have Lonesome Blues

LONDON.—(U.P.)—Cora. John and Hamish have got the lonesome blues. They are the three pet Cairn terriers of the Prince of Wales, and they are letting everyone know how much they miss him.

The three terriers live at St. James' Palace, London, while their royal master is away. As now in South America, they spend most of their time watching the everpassing traffic from an upper window.

They can distinguish the sound of the Prince's car from that of any other, and above the noise of all the other automobiles in the neighborhood.

Pelican Lives on Alms

GOLD BEACH, Ore.—(U.P.)—Gogus, Rogue river pelican, loathes work and lives by his wits and the generosity of fishermen. Gogus has a peregrinating appetite with a disinclination to rustle for himself and has toured the river in every boat available. He is neither food shy nor camera shy, in fact anything free is his way of living.

Hoovers on Visit to Ailing Son

A father and mother on their way to visit an ailing son, President and Mrs. Hoover here are pictured as they were about to board a train at Washington to Asheville, N. C., where their son, John Edgar Hoover, Jr., is recovering from a tubercular infection. The President declined the offer of a special train, and could not be prevailed upon to prolong his southern trip for a much-needed rest for himself. It was the first time he had seen his son since last October, although Mrs. Hoover has made several trips to Sunset Mountain.

Kiwanians To Aid Cause of Agents

The Rev. Mr. Strassner
Also Urges Visiting Day
Attendance March 20

Kiwanians were asked to bend every effort to make up for the fact that Hempstead county has neither county agent, nor home demonstrator, by the Rev. George F. X. Strassner, member of the club, at its Thursday noon meeting.

He asked club members to do personal work by inviting all their friends or acquaintances to the annual Visiting Day, which is to be held next Friday, March at the Fruit & Truck Experiment Farm.

"Since surrounding counties are following the leadership of their salaried farm workers, to dig themselves out of the recent financial depression among their farmers, it behooves the Kiwanis club, as a club devoted to development of civic interests, to put its shoulders to the wheel in order to make up for the fact that Hempstead county has no such farm agents," he said.

John P. Cox, who won the attendance prize last week, gave the prize this week. It consisted of a coffee pot for a child's play set. Kiwanian Jud Neighbors presided in the absence of R. V. Herndon.

A meeting of the board of directors is to be held Thursday night at 8 o'clock, at the Saenger theater.

Germany Plans To Light New Night-Flying Lanes

The lighting on the Berlin-Halle-Leipzig-Nuernberg route will be extended to Munich, starting point for the international lines to Vienna, Zurich, Milan, Geneva and Barcelona.

The ground lighting on the Berlin-Hanover-Cologne route will be carried on to the German border, connecting with the French line to Paris. The route from Hanover to Hamburg will also be lighted, giving night connection with Amsterdam.

He Couldn't Pronounce His Own Name

DETROIT.—(U.P.)—When Shakespeare wrote "What's in a name?" he certainly wasn't thinking of such people as Vasil Rasko Ferraravocinc-mooseuigearmoecicou, a young Yugoslav.

When Vasil applied to Ted Manning, naturalization examiner, Manning asked his name.

"It's Vasil Rasko Ferraravocinc-mooseuigearmoecicou," he replied.

Rescue Ship Unable To Pick Up Many of Survivors

SHANGHAI, China, (AP)—Two hundred persons are believed to have drowned when the heavily loaded passenger steamer Pachi, blew up and sank in the Yangtze River seventy miles from here Wednesday midnight.

Among the three hundred passengers aboard were one hundred Chinese soldiers who were thought to have thrown cigarette stubs into the cargo which was principally cotton.

An explosion followed spreading of the fire in the hold.

Most of the passengers jumped over the side of the vessel into the water where a revenue cruiser was able to pick up but few of the survivors.

Kidnaper Guilty, Gets Prison Term

Penalty for Jess Glasscoe
Fixed at 25 Years in Penitentiary

BOSTON, Tex.—(AP)—Jess Glasscoe, 27, was convicted of a charge of robbery with firearms and sentenced to 25 years imprisonment late Wednesday in connection with the kidnaping and shooting last December of R. W. Hanks, Redwater bank cashier.

The District Court jury returned the verdict after deliberating 3 1/2 hours. Glasscoe showed no emotion as the verdict was read but his sister, Mrs. D. C. Hughes, wept.

Glasscoe also is under indictment charging kidnaping and assault with intent to kill. District Attorney R. G. Waters said he is undecided whether he will press the other charges. Glasscoe's attorneys announced a motion for a new trial would be filed.

The evidence against Glasscoe was largely circumstantial.

The most important link connecting him with the kidnaping and shooting was a plaid jacket which Hanks said was given him by his abductor. It was identified by several witnesses as belonging to Glasscoe.

The defense sought to establish an alibi for Glasscoe, several witnesses testifying he was in Texarkana on the night of December 8 last, when Hanks was abducted from his back yard by a man who marched him several miles through the woods and finally shot him.

Hanks was unable to identify Glasscoe as his abductor, but said his voice resembled that of the man.

State's New Death House Still Lacks Victim

SANTEE FE, N. M.—(U.P.)—No one has been put to death in New Mexico's $20,000 new death house, which was built after the 1929 legislature changed the mode of death from hanging to electrocution.

And now there is before the New Mexico legislators a bill to abolish capital punishment and substitute life imprisonment.

Five men are under death sentences now, some originally sentenced to be hanged, some to be electrocuted. The question is now pending in the supreme court as to whether those at first sentenced to be hanged can be put to death in the electric chair.

SANTEE FE, N. M.—(U.P.)—Whoopie marriages are banned under a bill introduced in the house of New Mexico's legislature. The bill declares against the performance of marriages between the hours of midnight and 6 a. m., and proves that guilty persons may be fined from $25 to $100. The bill adds, however, that such marriages shall be valid and binding for all purposes.

He also estimated the number of persons employed had increased 1.4 per cent in February as compared to January and wages paid would be 7.5 per cent greater than in January.

Clues To Murderer of Girl Are Sought

Trail of Tracks and Fingerprints Being Followed In Probe

SAN DIEGO, Calif.—(AP)—A trail of tracks and finger prints was sought Wednesday by investigators searching for the slayer of Virginia Brooks, 10, whose dismembered body was found at Camp Kearny Mesa, Tuesday just one month after her disappearance.

The girl's school books, evidently tossed from an automobile in a sack with another which contained her broken body, were being examined. Imprints of tires left in the soft soil by the car which carried the bundles to the spot where George Moses, a sheepherder, found them, were photographed. Newspaper clippings which tumbled out of the burlap sack with the body were scrutinized.

These offered slender clues which might lead to the apprehension of a killer as brutal as the one who kidnaped, slew and dismembered Marian Parker in Los Angeles four years ago. It was through fingerprints that William Edward Hickman was identified and later executed for the Parker girl's murder.

A search which spread fanwise from Oakland, Calif., across Arizona and New Mexico to the Texas Panhandle followed the disappearance of Virginia Brooks the morning of February 11 after she left her home for school.

One of Most Stormy Sessions in History of State Concluded

Senate Adjourns Promptly
at Noon, While House
Stops Clock

MANY BILLS PASSED

Bill To Hold Constitutional
Convention in October
Passed By Senate

LITTLE ROCK.—(AP)—The eighth general assembly of Arkansas came in swinging and went out still swinging Thursday, still arguing.

The senate, adjourned promptly at noon, but the house stopped the clock to hold its final program.

One of the most important pieces of legislation of the session was completed by its passage just before adjournment in the senate when the McCabe bill, to call a constitutional convention next October 5, was approved by a vote of 19 to 15.

Delegates to the convention will be appointed in July.

A short filibuster by Senator Arlington to prevent a roll call on Senator Bailey's bill to transfer 15 per cent of the state game and fish commissions fund to the general revenue fund featured the closing minutes of the senate session.

The house completed action on a score of senate measures, one of which was to prohibit acceptance of personal checks by any officer or agent of the state in payment of obligations due to the state.

The house also passed Senator Brewer's bill permitting bankers to pledge state highway bonds and road district bonds for security on deposits of state funds.

A move to extend the session until Saturday noon was made by the introduction of a resolution to adjourn at 12 o'clock on Saturday.

It was defeated 18 to 12. The resolution provided that the extension should be only for the passage of legislation for the relief of the schools.

Senator Mitchell charged the reason for the purpose extension was to permit "the utility crowd" to put over an omnibus tax bill after we killed another bill which would have taxed utilities. He referred to the Thorn bill which was postponed indefinitely.

Senator Thornton denied the "utility" had anything to do with the bill. He has pending in the house which would place a tax of three per cent on salaries of all public officials, including school teachers and others receiving their salary from the state.

Two Terms Added To Miller Courts

Slight Changes Made In
Nevada and Lafayette Counties Also

Two additional terms of Miller county circuit court, one in March and one in September, have been added by Act 118 of the 1931 Arkansas assembly, signed by Governor Parrell.

The act, introduced as Senate Bill 149 by Senator Mitchell of Hempstead county, also makes slight changes in court terms in Nevada and Lafayette counties. In Nevada county, the July term will begin on the first Monday instead of the second Monday; and in Lafayette county, the August term will begin on the third Monday instead of the second Monday.

The act appropriates $1275 for traveling expenses of the circuit judges, proportioned among the counties of the eighth judicial circuit according to size and number of court terms. Miller county will pay $600 and the remainder will be distributed among the four other counties, Nevada, Lafayette, Hempstead and Clark.

Originally the bill called for an $1800 expense account, but was later amended.

The terms in Miller county follow: second Monday in March, first Monday in June, second Monday in September and fourth Monday in November.

The act was passed through agitation among attorneys of the five counties, led by the Miller County Bar Association. Complaint was made that the Miller county docket was congested and that unfairness was imposed on criminal defendants because of the six months formerly separating grand jury sessions.

Miller county attorneys wanted separate divisions of civil and criminal court, presided over by different judges, but other counties of the circuit opposed this. An attempt was made to oppose the Mitchell bill in the house of representatives, but was abandoned when Representative B. F. Arnold of Miller county decided to support the four-term plan, according to Paul Jones Sr., president of the Miller county association.

COUNTY

A county highway program providing for the construction of a certain amount of all-weather road each year, to gradually reduce the dirt-road mileage.

Political and economic support for every scientific agricultural measure which offers practical benefits to Hempstead county's great industry.

Encourage farmer organizations, believing that co-operative effort is practical in the country as it is in town.

STATE

Continued progress on the state highway program.

Reform its revenue, and a more efficient government through the budget system of expenditures.

Free Arkansas from the cattle tick.

Life and Livestock

WHEN Governor Parnell signed the tick-eradication measure Wednesday he brought to a successful conclusion a battle for better farming that has been waged in Arkansas for the last generation.

The new law, which will close up the last gap in tick-eradication work in the state, appropriates $175,000, to be matched with an equal amount by the federal government. Our readers are familiar with the story of the state program. Succeeding legislatures carried this important work forward until all but twenty southern counties had been cleared of the fever tick, and released from federal quarantine. This point was reached at the beginning of the last decade, when the state program faltered. In recent years the number of infested counties has been haphazardly reduced to fifteen, but there was no organized program and there seemed little hope of making Arkansas wholly tick-free.

The effort was made in the 1929 legislature, but it ran afoul of other legislative fights, and the appropriation was defeated.

For the victory in the 1931 session we are thankful to our own senator, Lawrence L. Mitchell of Prescott, who introduced the tick-eradication bill, and to all those legislative friends who session after session have stood determinedly behind this important agricultural relief measure.

It is a relief measure, because past generations of Arkansas farmers have seen livestock herds fall before the merciless hand of the Texas fever tick. Tick infestation appears to have been a natural handicap for this section.

Surely the state can perform no greater service for its people than to thus protect them from a great scourge in their main livelihood, agriculture. Economists tell us that without livestock the farmer perishes. Two generations of cotton-farming have persuaded the South that the economists are right.

This tick-eradication campaign which Arkansas is now completing may be the means of adding millions of dollars in annually accruing wealth for the homesteads of the state. Except for the fever tick, our state has more natural advantages in the economical raising of livestock than any of the historically famous dairy centers such as Wisconsin, Michigan and New York. And no what the fever tick is to be forever exiled, Arkansas farmers may safely import blooded stock and wrast from the Northern dairymen a supremacy which technically has already passed.

December Is Coming

THE 71st congress has passed into history. It has earned the title of the "Ten Billion Dollar Congress," for that approximates the amount it has appropriated during the two years of its existence.

President Hoover, who during these two years has found himself at frequent variance with congress, who almost from the start has encountered the stubborn and often victorious opposition of blocs and factions, who has seen some of his supposedly strongest supporters line up with majorities against administration positions on important issues, doubtless sighs with relief as he realizes that this congress is out of the way. Boulder Canyon, tariff revision, farm relief, drouth relief, bonus loans, Muscle Shoals—what a list of issues have been battled over by this congress.

But if the President is glad that it is over, his pleasure will disappear when he looks ahead to next December, when the 72nd congress convenes, and realizes that the worst is yet to come.

This next congress offers every prospect of being the most discordant on record. The senate will be so closely divided on party lines that, with the oft demonstrated tendency of the midwestern independents to take matters in their own hands, the paper majority of the Republicans will mean nothing.

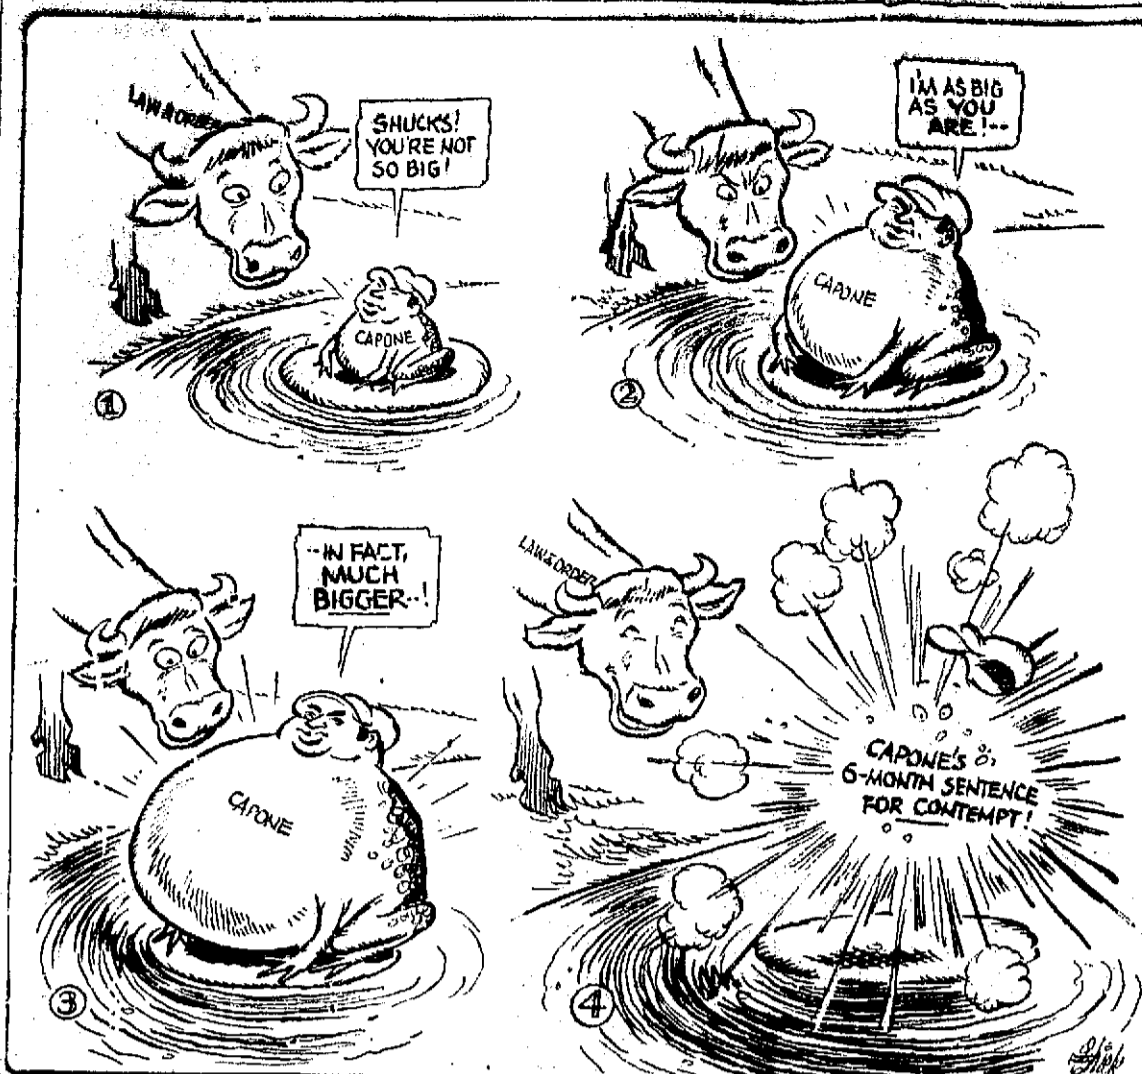

As for the house, it is so closely divided that the swing of a handful of votes will decide the fate of matters before it and the lone Farmer-Labor member is credited with the balance of power.

Among straws which show which way the wind blows, the most significant now is demonstration of independence by insurgents in both houses. Some of the house members absented themselves from the Republican caucuses. Among senators, three Republicans and two Democrats have issued a call for a nonpartisan conference.

The members of the independent bloc realize that they have the whip in hand and they intend to use it.

During the months which intervene between today and the opening of the next regular session of congress, there will be a great deal of political maneuvering. Events which normally might escape attention will be closely watched and interpreted in their political significance. The hand of death will be followed as it lingers over congressmen and senators, for the selections which death may make within these next few months may decide what this next congress is to be.—Jonesboro Evening Sun.

Modern Fable of the Bullfrog and the Ox!

Other Days

From the Columns of The Star of Hope

25 YEARS AGO

Jeff Davis, our governor, and would-be United States Senator, spoke at Bates Thursday, and came in to Hope on the afternoon train. Although most of our people were happy in their ignorance of the fact, he breathed the pure air of our city for some fifty minutes, or until the next Iron Mountain train went north, when he proceeded to "hike."

Oscar Brint was a pleasant caller at Fav this week.

The cold wave which swept this section Monday and Tuesday, the thermometer going down to 24 degrees Tuesday morning, brought reminiscences of other cold weather when spring was in bloom to the minds of our older citizens. We are indebted to Judge A. H. Carrigan, the local weather observer, for the following interesting data: April 6, 1897, was the coldest day ever known on this section for so late in the season. The thermometer went down to 24, and all vegetation was killed. On the 15th of April, 1849, vegetation was also killed, the mercury registering 32 degrees.

At a meeting of the Hempstead County Farm Bureau and Cotton Growers, held at the Chamber of Commerce rooms yesterday afternoon, delegates were elected to attend a meeting of cotton growers to be held at Little Rock on March 21-22, as follows: Chas. Haffke, W. Homer Figg, Clyde Hill and Gordon Cook.

The wedding came as the culmination of a real radio romance which started in the studios where the bride was employed as a staff pianist and the groom as audio engineer.

Fruit Worth $600,000,000

BURLINGTON, Vt.—(U.P.)—The annual value of America's fruit crops now averages something like $600,000,000, according to figures compiled by Marshall B. Cummings, professor of horticulture at University of Vermont. Apples account for approximately one-third of the total value.

American Tobacco Nets 43 Millions

Lucky Strike Company Pays U. S. Tax of 150 Million Dollars

Net earnings of the American Tobacco Company for 1930, after providing for all expenses of management, depreciation and taxes, amounted to $43,345,370 according to the annual report which was mailed to stockholders Thursday. Taxes paid to the Federal Government alone were more than $150,000,000.

These earnings, the largest in the company's history, represent an increase of 43 per cent over the net earnings of 1929 and amounted to $8.56 per share as against $5.76 per share in 1929.

The increase in net earnings last year over the preceding year, was $13,118,165. This was more than twice the combined increase in earnings of the Company's three principal competitors.

Dividends paid to stockholders on the common and common B stock established a new high record of $29,293,983. In addition, dividends of $2,161,982 were paid on the preferred stock.

With the notice of the annual meeting on April 1st there is being mailed to the stockholders today a complete statement as to what has been done in carrying out the stockholders' authorization given at their special meeting of July 28, 1929 for the sale of common B stock to employees.

In a letter to the stockholders accompanying the annual report, George W. Hill, President, says:

"You will be interested to compare these earnings of $43,345,370 with the earnings of the company in 1911, eleven months of which passed before the numerous subsidiaries (now manufacturing the most important competitive brands) were separated from the parent Company in accordance with the mandate of the Supreme Court of the United States. In that year the earnings of the company for its preferred and Common Stock, including eleven months' earnings of the properties separated by the Supreme Court, were $30,633,314."

"In 1912, the first year after the dissolution, our net earnings available for dividends were $15,443,961, this figure dwindling by 1915 to $11,234,581."

"The history of the tobacco business during the past generation shows a constantly growing tendency toward cigarettes. The recognition of this fact has been a broad decisive policy in the success of the present administration of your Company."

It is pointed out that in 1926, the year Mr. Hill became president, the company produced only 27.14 per cent of all the cigarettes made in the United States. During the last five years, notwithstanding unusually active competition, the company's percentage of the total cigarette business in the United States has steadily increased to 38.16 per cent of the total in 1930.

Actual sales of Lucky Strike cigarettes, the company's principal brand, increased 5,212,000,000 in 1930 as compared with 1929. This was a greater increase by more than 5,500,000,000 cigarettes than all the cigarettes produced in the United States combined.

NEW YORK. —(U.P.)—Close on the arrest of a 15-year-old boy as an armed robber, police raided the home of his sweetheart in the Bronx early Tuesday and found in a radio cabinet what they described as an antique pistol, a trench knife, a loaded cartridge belt and six smoke bombs.

John Eaton, 40, was jailed on a charge of violating the anti-firearms law although he said he was not aware of the arsenal. His daughter, Marion, 14, was not at home. The pistol was made in London in 1490, police said and still is in working order.

Daily WASHINGTON LETTER

BY RODNEY DUTCHER
 ALEX. Searles Writer

WASHINGTON.—Who said the country didn't want an extra session of Congress?

From all parts of the country, in the last days of the session, came pleas to Capitol Hill for action of one sort or another on this and that, most of which obviously could not be taken care of before adjournment. The indication seems to be that there are large mobs of citizens who would be positively delighted to have Congress come right back and give them what they want.

Study of about 300 petitions from groups of citizens received by the House and Senate within a single week reveals several interesting facts—such as where the pressure of back-home lobbying was centered, what kind of folks are most prone to sign such prayers, and the optimism of those who don't follow the progress or collapse of measures in Congress.

Many Churches Sent Petitions. The churches and organizations affiliated with them were the most numerous last-minute petitioners. The majority of petitions were Protestant groups urging passage of the Sparks-Capper amendment or the Hudson bill for movie censorship, while Catholic parishes and organizations sent in dozens of protests against the Cillet "doctor's bill" to liberalize the birth control laws. None of these measures had a chance in the 71st Congress.

And right up to the bitter end, groups of citizens were demanding cash payment of soldier bonus certificates, although that possibility had long ago faded out. World Court ratification also continued frequently to be urged, along with the bill to exempt dogs from vivisection in the District of Columbia.

Most emphatic and fervent of all this season's petitions were those protesting against the Cillet bill, coming from communities big and little. Many petitioners in that group foresaw nothing short of national ruin if it were passed.

Such group petitions are always referred to appropriate committees and if they pile up high enough a committee considers them when it passes on the bill in question.

Both the Sparks-Capper amendment and the Hudson movie bill obviously have made a hit out in the so-called "sticks." Among scores of petitions on their behalf hardly one comes from a town large enough to be known outside its own state.

Dry and anti-Catholic organizations have been its most enthusiastic sponsors, but there is much general sentiment for it in rural states which lose one or more congressmen under the last reapportionment.

W. C. T. U. Seeks Censorship. W. C. T. U. members also have been strong for the Hudson censorship bill. Petitions for passage of that measure have been received from North Branch and Alpena, Kas.; Herkimer, N. Y.; Denver, Fort Lewis and Hugo in Colorado; Charleston, W. Va.; Oshkosh, Logan and Phillipsburg in Kansas; Venatchee, Wash.; Council Bluffs, Ia.; Owosso, Mich.; Mohawk, Rome, Little Falls, Ill., Norway, Charleston Four Corners and Utica in New York, and Menlo, Kas.

Keep love in your life, my friend,
If you would have perfect joy;
Keep love, never let her depart—
For who would his life destroy?
For life's no longer than love, my friend;
When love is no more, 'tis the journey's end.
And Regret and Fear shall your way attend.
Keep love in your life, my friend.

Keep love in your life always,
Though tempted to bid her go;
Keep love the bride of your heart,
If you would a true life know.
For life's no longer than love, we say;
With the end of love comes the close
of day,
And the chill of death 'mid the shadows gray.
Keep love in your life always.

Bureau Keeps Record of Liquor Violators

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—U.S.—Permanent records of persons arrested for violating the liquor laws are now kept by the United States Bureau of Prohibition in the form of fingerprints, James A. Eaton, Deputy Administrator for Southern Illinois, announced here recently.

Eaton declared the department was continuing the practice of seeking to gather information concerning whether defendants are foreign born, and if so, whether naturalization papers have been obtained. This is in keeping with preparation to offer all material available to officials in Washington in such cases where deportation of alien violators might be under consideration, he said.

Traffic Tag Fixers Find Laws Enforced

SAN FRANCISCO—(U.S.)—Prominent citizens, or those with "a friend on the force," are finding hard sledding when it comes to squaring a traffic tag.

The traffic law enforcement board of San Francisco has decided on 52 weeks of rigid adherence to the statutes, with special emphasis on the rule that no department of the city government shall "fix tickets."

"There are too many temporary safety drives and other spasmodic efforts at enforcement," one board member said. "People get the idea from safety weeks that they can violate the law at other times. The campaign of education is over and it's time we made the streets safe every day in the week."

Youthful Convicts Show Big Increase

SAN QUENTIN PRISON, Cal.—(U.S.)—Figures compiled at San Quentin, one of California's two State Prisons, reveal that the number of young men who are convicted of penitentiary offenses is becoming larger at an alarming rate.

"Of 5,015 convicts at San Quentin, 2,780, or 63 per cent, are under 30 years of age," Warden James B. Holohan reported. "Youth is going to prison at a rate faster than ever before. A year ago only 51 per cent of the prison's male population was under 30."

Segregated by age, there are 217 convicts under 20, 1,196 between 20 and 24, and 1,267 between 25 and 30. Approximately half the 118 women prisoners are under 30.

Czechs May Claim Island of Jan Mayen

PARIS—(U.S.)—The Foreign Office at Prague has sounded out the other governments of Europe to learn whether there would be any objections to Czechoslovakia laying claim to the Island of Jan Mayen, an island about the size of Long Island, lying North of Iceland and East of Greenland at 90 W. 71 N.

The island is rich in coal and iron and would make an excellent air base for flights over the North Pole. Since the war, Norway has looked after the island but has never proven its claim. Czechoslovakia may claim possession on the grounds that Rear-Ad-

What Will Barney Do?

MIAMI, Fla.—Will Barney Dreyfuss retain the Pittsburgh Pirates among his holdings since the death of his son, who served as vice president and treasurer of the club, or will he sell his interests and go into retirement? This question is the basis of frequent discussions among the baseball magnates, managers, players and writers assembled in these parts.

It is generally known that Sam Dreyfuss, Barney's only son, was to have assumed command of the Pirates in the near future. More and more each year, Barney had been turning over the club's affairs to Sam. The son was prepared to step in any time the father cared to relinquish his place at the head of the organization.

Dreyfuss could have sold the Pirates for more than one occasion in recent years; they were a good ball club and were making money for him. Because he passed up these opportunities to sell, the impression became general that he was holding on to turn it over to Sam and thus keep it in the family.

Father, Son Loved Game

BARNEY has been the head man at Pittsburgh since 1900. His 65th birthday was to have been fittingly observed Feb. 23. However, the tragedy of his son's death just the day before overshadowed the occasion.

A baseball environment was his son's from early youth. He became a fan before starting to school. The father often boasted that Sam in his youth knew more "inside baseball" than many managers and players.

Dreyfuss, Sr., developed a love for the national pastime shortly after he arrived in this country as a youth from Germany. He worked his way into the Louisville club's organization. By shrewd buying of talent, he maneuvered Louisville out of the rut and onto a winning track.

Then came an opportunity to buy into the National League. He did, establishing his Louisville club in Pittsburgh.

Won Six Pennants

THAT first year of the Pirates in the National League, it was 1900, saw them finish in second place behind Brooklyn. The great Fred Clarke was Barney's manager. In the next three seasons the Bucs captured pennants.

Pittsburgh has enjoyed a first division complex under the Dreyfuss regime. In 31 seasons, the Pirates have fallen into the rear half but five times. They came to the top again in 1909, 1925 and 1927, and won world's championships in 1909 and 1925 from Detroit and Washington.

National League history records the name of Barney Dreyfuss with great frequency. For many years he was entrusted with the making of the league schedule. Forbes Field, the home he built for his team, was the first baseball plant whose erection involved an expenditure of more than a million dollars. He was prominent in the movement that banished the spitball pitcher. He was the first owner to part with more than $20,000 for a player, his $22,500 for pitcher Marty O'Toole in 1911 creating a new high mark in baseball ivory prices.

DID YOU KNOW THAT—

ON the second day of their training at San Antonio, the Giants concluded that the lively ball is not deceased. They banked the new apple into both the right and left field fences some help from it, however. Pete Donohue expects some help from it, however. He believes he can make it do queer things on a damp day. "With dirt sticking in those raised seams, it will do plenty of tricks," comments the Texan. Apparently, Jackie Fields will meet Len Harvey after all. Jackie was able to convince the N. Y. commission that Jack Kearns was not his manager—and never had been. Seems queer, though, that Kearns should have been in his corner the last time this department witnessed the ex-champion of the welters in action and it was only a few months ago, too.

Painful Piles

Go Quick—No Cutting—No Salves

It takes only one bottle of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt's prescription—HEM-ROID—to end itching, bleeding, protruding piles. This internal remedy acts quickly even in old, stubborn cases. HEM-ROID succeeds because it heals and restores the effected parts and removes blood congestion in the lower bowel—the cause of piles. Only an internal medicine can do this, that's why salves and cutting fail. Ward & Son say HEM-ROID Tablets must end your pile misery or money back.—Adv.

MAD MARRIAGE

by LAURA LOU BROOKMAN Author of "HEART HUNGRY," etc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
GYPSY McBRIDE, 16-year-old typist, goes to meet the bent on which ALAN CROSBY is entering from a year and a half in Paris. Two nights later Crosby breaks an engagement with Gypsy, explaining he is spending the evening with business associates. The girl goes to the theater alone and encounters Crosby with a Mrs. CATHERINE LANGLEY. There is a scene. Mrs. Langley drives away in her car and Gypsy and Crosby go home in a cab, quarreling all the way. Next day at the office Crosby is ordered a promotion and takes a dictation test. She herself home determined to avenge her humiliation. They meet and in the interview following Crosby makes it plain his former affection for Gypsy is ended. Next day at the office Crosby is reprimanded for some careless work and she resigns her job.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VIII

WHEN Gypsy opened the front door she heard footsteps on the second floor landing. Then a familiar voice called down: "Miss McBride—is that you, dearie?" "Yes, Mrs. O'Hare," the girl answered.

"Well, somebody's been trying to get you on the telephone all afternoon. I told 'em you wouldn't be in until five, but they kept calling. Last time was about half an hour ago, I guess."

"It couldn't be—no, of course not! Gypsy told herself it was ridiculous to let her hopes rise. Still there was a quickening in her voice.

"Do you know who it was?" "No, they didn't give any name. Number's on the pad beside the telephone, though. They said you were to call back."

Gypsy's feet flew down the hall. At the far end was the pay telephone for the roomers' use and beside it a pad on which messages were posted.

There it was—"McBride—call Center 5942 before 6 p. m."

With a weary gesture the girl turned and started back toward the stairs.

"Did you find it?" the landlady's voice persisted from above.

"Yes, I know who it is—nothing very important, I guess."

"The woman who called the last time said you should be sure and ring the minute you came in!" Mrs. O'Hare said insistently.

"Well, I guess—"

Further discussion was interrupted by the jangle of the telephone bell.

"I'll answer it," offered Gypsy, turning back.

"Oh, that'll save me coming down. Thanks, dearie."

The girl placed the receiver to her ear. Immediately she recognized the voice at the other end of the line.

"Hello," the voice said. "May I speak to Miss McBride?"

"This is she," answered Gypsy. "Is that you, Anne?"

"Oh—at last I've found you. I've been trying all day long to get in touch with you! First I called your office and they said you'd gone. After that I tried this number. There's something you've simply got to do for me—"

Just as she had thought. Whenever Anne Trowbridge called it was to ask a favor. Anne was the only relative of Gypsy's who lived within 1000 miles of New York but their paths crossed so infrequently they seldom thought of each other as cousins. Anne had come to the city as the bride of Phil Trowbridge. She had "married well," according to the old phrase. Anne's father and Gypsy's mother had been brother and sister but the two girls had never seen each other until the day two years before when Gypsy had called on young Mrs. Trowbridge in her hotel suite.

She sat down before the dressing table and went to work.

Here in New York Anne and her husband lived in an apartment on the upper east side. Gypsy took Sunday dinner there twice a year—and was slow about calling afterward. She thought Anne patronized her, though in reality the fault was on both sides.

It had been six months since she had heard Anne's voice.

"What do you want me to do, Anne?" Gypsy asked.

"I want you to come to dinner. Oh, you must! You see, I'm having some people in for dinner and bridge. There were to be 14 and this afternoon Mildred Lane was in a traffic accident and fractured her arm. I simply cannot have 13 people—I'm terribly superstitious!—and everyone I've called has been out of town or sick or giving parties. You're my only hope, Gypsy! Don't bother to change. You can dress here. I'll lend you something."

So that was what to Anne's mind was a tragedy! Gypsy had been trying to get a word in. Now she spoke abruptly.

"Sorry," she said. "I'd like to help you out but I won't be able to. What was the usual excuse? Oh, yes, of course—I—I have an engagement for the evening!" Gypsy stumbled a bit over the words.

"Oh but Gypsy—can't you break it off?"

"Afraid not."

"But won't you try?"

There was nothing to do but work her way out. Gypsy tried a white lie.

"I'll try to," she promised. "I'll call you back about it. I mean I'll call you if I can come."

Gypsy replaced the receiver and reached the telephone on the first floor.

"Operator," she called impatiently. "Give me Center 5942. Hurry!"

A man's voice came over the wire.

"Is this Phil?" Gypsy asked.

"This is Gypsy. Will you tell Anne I'm going to be able to come for dinner. Tell her I'm starting right away. Yes, I'll try to get there in half an hour. That's all. Goodbye."

It was reckless to spend money on taxi fare but Gypsy was in a reckless mood. She pulled on hat and coat without even a glance in the mirror, and hurried out of the house. On the curb she signaled a cab and 35 minutes later was alighting at the canopied entrance of the up-town apartment.

As the elevator car rose to the 16th floor Gypsy had a moment of foreboding. She stifled it. Anything was better than another evening alone.

"Gypsy—I'm so glad you came!" Anne was waiting for her in the open doorway. Phil Trowbridge was there too and said a casual "good evening." Gypsy had always liked Phil.

Immediately the girl was whisked down a corridor to Anne's bedroom.

"I knew you wouldn't have time to dress so I got this out for you. Do you like it?"

ANNE TROWBRIDGE held up a creamy flowered chiffon with a vivid design in crimson, orange and dull green. Anne herself was gowned in flame. A stranger might have thought the girls were sisters. Anne was nearly an inch taller but her frocks fit Gypsy perfectly.

"It's lovely," Gypsy said.

"Glad you think so. Now hurry up and get into it. You'll find everything you need on the dressing table. Oh, do try my new rouge! I'm simply crazy about it. You'll excuse me, won't you? I've got to see Phil. Dinner's at seven so you'll have time if you hurry. If you want anything just call—"

The hostess disappeared. Gypsy pulled off her Jersey office dress and hung it away in a closet. A bath room, stunning in blue and silver, adjoined the bedroom. Gypsy took a quick plunge, wrapped herself in a rose negligee and went over to the dressing table.

What an array of lovely bottles and boxes—all for the purpose of making Anne beautiful! Gypsy picked up a jar of crystal and lifted the turquoise lid.

There were lamps at either side of the dressing table, flooding the glass with pitiless light. Gypsy studied her reflection; then she sat down before the dressing table and set to work.

Twenty minutes later there was a tap at the door.

"Gypsy!" Anne Trowbridge called. "Are you ready?"

The door opened and Anne stepped into the room. "My dear!" she exclaimed, "you're looking wonderful!"

Gypsy turned slowly for inspection. Anne was enthusiastic. "I never saw you looking so pretty!" she declared. "I'm proud of you. Come on out with me. Some of the people are here and I want you to meet them."

Obediently Gypsy followed. She was wearing a lovely gown and it had been amusing trying out Anne's cosmetics, but already she wished the evening were over. She wished she had not come.

Gypsy had no way of knowing that this was to be the most momentous evening of her life.
